Rotary Engineering awarded S$64m worth of new contracts amidst challenging business environment

- Staying resilient through a combination of medium and small projects by leveraging on integrated multi-disciplinary skills beyond tank storage construction
- Continues to explore business opportunities in the Middle East and Asia-Pacific region

SINGAPORE, 16 September 2016 – Mainboard-listed Rotary Engineering Limited and its subsidiaries (“Rotary” or the “Group”), a leading regional oil & gas engineering, procurement, construction (“EPC”) and maintenance services value chain provider, today announced that it has secured contracts worth approximately S$64 million for the period June to September 2016.

Amidst the challenging oil and gas industry, Rotary remains resilient by securing smaller and more varied jobs beyond tank storage construction. Many of the new projects require integration of several engineering and construction skills such as piping, mechanical, electrical and instrumentation, metal and alloy fabrication, and HVAC (heating, ventilation, air-conditioning).

A key project was awarded as the main contractor for the extension of a chemical storage and handling facility in the United Arab Emirates. The work scope included mechanical and piping, electrical and instrumentation, firefighting works, civil and structural works, utilities and HVAC works.

In Thailand, the Group has also secured two contracts for fabrication works of oil and gas production-related modules. In addition, the Group has won an EPC contract for the revamp and capacity expansion of a grease manufacturing plant in Samut Sakorn province.

Mr. Roger Chia Kim Piow, Chairman and Managing Director of Rotary said, “Our new wins reflect customers’ confidence as well as Rotary’s growing presence within the Middle East and Asia-pacific region. We will continue to actively explore business opportunities and focus on delivering quality services.”
